

Deucetone Rat Settings Guide

The Deucetone Rat Settings Guide gives you a great start when exploring the nearly infinite possibilities available with this two channel distortion device. So grab your gear, plug in, and have fun.

Note: All sounds shown were achieved by cascading channel (A) into channel (B) unless otherwise noted.

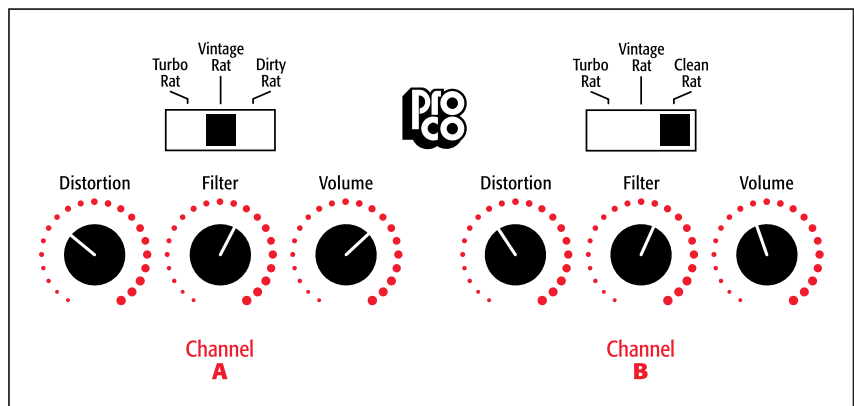

Pink Floyd, Santana, Early Hendrix

When using a humbucker equipped guitar channel (A) alone nails the "Another Brick in the Wall, Part 2" tone. Kicking on (B) yields a Santana "Abraxas" era sound.

With a single coil guitar, channel (A) and (B) together produce a fuzzy sound, much like early Hendrix. Channel (A) alone with single coils sounds great too. It is a sustaining, lower gain blues tone (one of the most interesting settings we've found).

David Gilmour/Pink Floyd

Great replica of the "Wish You Were Here" Album sound.

Fat Mosquito Fuzz

Plug in and try it – very cool!

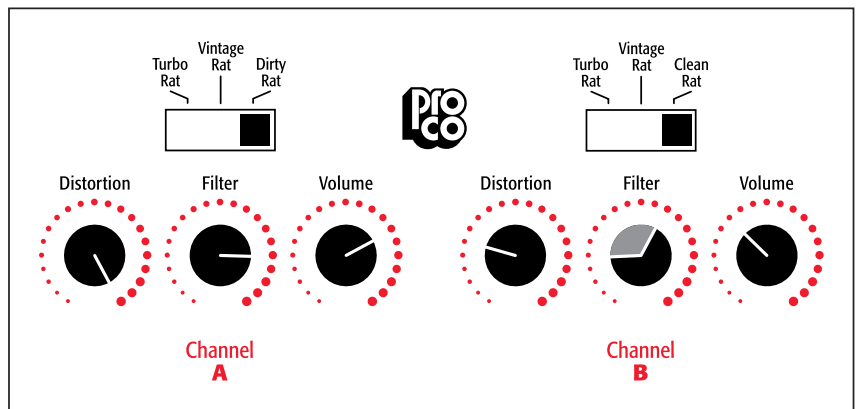

Deucetone Rat Settings Guide (03)

Meaty Buzz Saw Fuzz

These settings produce tons of harmonic overtones. Sometimes, a bit of octave creeps in – very cool.

Fat Bumblebee (Hendrix)

A favorite of the Pro Co crew, these settings produce tons of cool tones. Experiment with the Distortions on channel (A) and the Volume on (B). Very Hendrix like, but not quite as bumblebee.

Southern Rock

Both Channels: Duane Allman

Channel (A): ZZ toppish

Channel (B): Mississippi Delta Blues

Deucetone Rat Settings Guide (06)

90's Hard Rock

This one sounds like Stone Temple Pilots, Filter, etc. If you kill the mids on your amp it sounds borderline metal. It also sounds like Creed big time!

Deucetone Rat Settings Guide (07)

Early Metallica

This one emulates the sound of "Master of Puppets" or "Ride the Lightning."

Deucetone Rat Settings Guide (08)

90's Pop

Create the sounds of Weezer, Green Day and Blink 182. This one is very Marshall-like.

Brian May – Bohemian Rhapsody

What can we say, plug it in and jam!
